Christmas in the Heart

ALESSANDRO MONTAGNANA

*While snow falls soft and light,
and Christmas Eve is drawing night,
The elk hops on with little bound,
"I must hurry," it thinks, jumping around.*

*It's bought a bit of everything:
decorations, flour, sugar for a fling.
Wrapping paper and a hat with a pompom,
bells that ring with a "DIN-DON"!*

A picture book to read together with the little ones, to discover the magic of Christmas. A deep and funny story, accompanied by wonderful illustrations.

Hi, Teacher. Hi, Kids.

ANGELO PETROSINO
illustrated by SARA NOT

An old teacher, tidying up a closet, comes across the memories of the students he taught to in his last year of school: diaries, notebooks, photos, letters, drawings. Eleven of them have been imprinted more than others in his memory and he recalls their stories. Eleven different stories, eleven portraits of girls and boys in which, many of their peers, will be able to recognize themselves.

Zeno and Black

ANGELO PETROSINO
illustrated by SARA NOT

After the fantastic summer spent in the countryside with his grandmother and her animals, Zeno returns to the city to start his first year of primary school. He will meet a teacher who proposes intriguing riddles and becomes friend with a young girl. But, above all, he will establish an incredible friendship with an adventurous and intelligent crow.

A story of discoveries, encounters and friendships: a perfect book for curious readers and dreamers.

Ocean

GIONATA BERNASCONI
Cover by MARCO SOMÀ

Alice imagined the creatures of the abysses. She knew them well, she was the daughter of a sailor. She closed her eyes, and the thoughts flew away, sucked into the immensity of the sky. From up there Alice saw their bodies huddled in the center of the dinghy. Then two silhouettes, smaller and more insignificant. Finally, she saw only two dots in the middle of the ocean. Then nothing more...

At the mercy of a merciless Ocean, Milo and Alice fight against time, thirst and madness that threatens to drag them into the abyss.

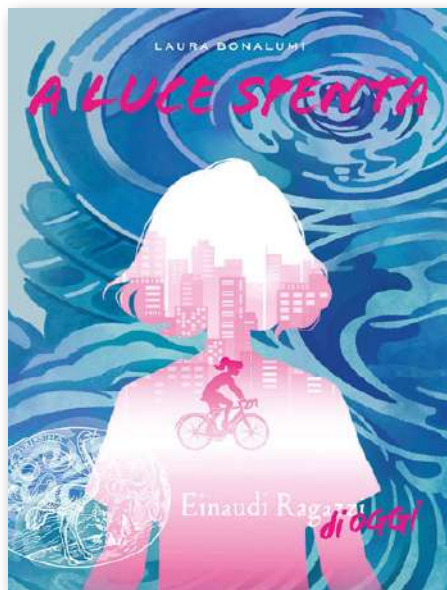

A story about growth, detachment and a sense of abandonment, where the ocean is not only what surrounds the protagonists, but also what they carry inside.

Stumbling Stones

FEDERICO GREGOTTI
Cover by IACOPO BRUNO

The German artist Gunter Demnig has created the largest widespread monument of memory in Europe through the installation of “stumbling stones”: over 100,000 small blocks, placed on the sidewalks in front of the last homes of the victims of Nazi persecution.

From there, those innocents were torn from their lives.

From there, today, their names engraved on the brass plaques of the Stumbling Stones tell their story.

A novel that tells, through the monument of Gunter Demnig, the exemplary stories of some victims of Nazi persecution.

The Words to speak

VANESSA ROGHI

Language is used to communicate and express oneself, but it can also be used to manipulate or convince, to exclude or to unite.

A journey through the history and evolution of the Italian language to understand how words build reality.

“Think of a word. What do you see? The object that the word describes? Or the letters that compose it? Think of the word “dog”. It will be difficult to separate, in your imagination, a dog, maybe your dog, from the word that indicates it.”
